And trickle cold tears on my bed. I sigh from the night till the morn For alas! I am old and forlorn! My garden is cover'd with weeds,

Once so trim and so usefully neat : There the toad on the aconite feeds, From the hole in the old rotten seat I sigh, &c.

With murmurs so sweet on its way No longer the rivulet roves, That made all the pastures so gay, And purl'd in the days of our loves I sigh, &c.

The elm that ofice shaded our door, And flourish'd and smil'd at the blast Now a sapless old trunk and no more, Brings to mem'ry my youth that is past. I sigh, &c.

The sparrows that chirped on the Droop their wings, the poor imps

No more to my labours I rise, And work on the hill and the plain Morn blushes in vain on the skies, And the sun gilds my cottage in vain. I sigh, &c.

Like a spectre I wander at night, And fear not the horrors of shade, For what can old Cicely affright, Who sighs for the shroud and the spade? I sigh, &c.

Whenever I hear the lorn knell, All solemn for one that is gone, I wish to bid life a fareweil, And grieve that it is not my own. I sigh, &c.

Forsaken I sit with a sigh, On the crazy old bench at the door: And oft in my sorrows I cry,
"Thou wilt hear thy poor master no more !"

THE LATE EUROPEAN NEWS We detained our Wednesday impression to announce the arrival of the cartel Fair American, from England, bringing official advices confirming all the important news brought by the Ida from France-

Through the politeness of Mr. Stone, a senger in the Fair American, we have London files to the 5th, and a Liverpool paper of the 7th April. A dozen news-papers could scarcely contain their interesting contents. We have commenced a selection of official accounts of some of the great war events in France; to enable the reader to form a judgment of the whole-particularly those of which no previous details had been received.

The whole of March was a month of almost unceasing carnage. Buopaparte who appeared to decline a general, battle, made a most active partizan warfare, continually marching and countermarching-attack-ing detached corps of the allies, and attempting to out-general his antagonist. . He, however, failed-was himself completely out-generalled by his enemy—who, having effected a junction of their two armies, attacked his corps in their turn, overthrew them, and by rapid marches and hard fighting, got possession of the capital of France. The loss to Buonaparte in these events must have been great, and his exertions shew that he had collected a large army. He has confessed that he was out-marched, and at the last date he was fortifying himself several leagues S. E. of the city. On the other hand the allies appeared victorious in all quarters; had gained splendid successes at Othes, Aire and Tarbe. At Laon, Soissons, Arcis, & in the suburbs of Paris. At Macon and in July. The effect of this state of things was the univer sal defection of the people and national guards, and great desertions armies, In short , April 7. from the Fred it was evident that Napoleon's star was set, and his power and resour-ces decaying like a rope of sand; and that nothing short of a mira-cle could save him. We must refer to our crowded columns for evidence of these facts.

The allies entered Paris, as we have before stated, the 31st March in immense strength-they found there a friendly people; and we have an official manuscript article by the Fair American which states positively that Lord Castlereagh, who was in Paris, had written, that the allies were then negotiating a peace with the French senate-independent of Buonaparte. The Senate we believe possess the power to dethrone the emperor. The Chatillon negotiation ended the 18th

As far as the free wishes of delivered France had been ascertained, they were in favour of the restoration of the mild house of Bourbon. The members of that family were entering France from the north, the east, and the south. Louis 18th had been enthusiastically proclaimed in Bourdeux, Nanci, and many other places. If the French people are allowed to elect their sovereign it will be the head of the Bourbon family. They are tired of the reign of the Cormorant.

The allies appeared most wonderfully united. Speaking of Austria the last Courier, says, "Her conduct throughout the negotiation has been most unreserved and honourable; and there is the utmost cordiality and unity of sentiment and plan between all the ailies.'

The farce of deception was kept up in Paris until the very day the allies entered it-Even on the day the Empress fled to Rambouillet & Tours, she is said to have reviewed the national guard-those guards who the moment she departed, refused to defend their city, and did duty with its conquerors.

> From the Vermont Mirror. A WHISKEY SPEECH.

During the present session of the Legislature of Pennsylvania, in a debate on the propriety of raising the wages of the members, a Mr. Metzger of the assembly, said-That when they were elected in October they did not anticipate that the price of Whiskey and Jamaica would be raised 100 per cent. or Wine from 1 to 2 dollars a bottle-For his part if he had foreseen it. he did not know whether he would have consented to serve; and indeed he thought the people themselves would have instructed them to raise the wages."

Mr. M's argument it seems was irresistable—The wages were raised—ayes 53, nays 33. Whiskey con trouls all things in Pennsylvania.

From the New York Gazette. A gentleman who came home in the Fair American, has favoured us with the loan of five numbers of Cobbett's Register, two of which are filled with a particular account of the HOAX of Ld. Cochrane and others, on the Stock Exchange, by which many persons were ruined. The hoax was, a report on the 21st of Feb. of the destruction of Napoleon, and the entrance of the allies into Paris. Cobbett refutes the charge of Lord Cochrane's having any agency in the fabrication.

George & John Barber. Annapolis, May 5, 2 PROPOSALS

For publishing in the City of Baltimore, A DAILY NEWSPAPER,

TO BE EN TITLED. THE BALTIMORE TELEGRAPHE AND MERCANTILE ADVERTISER. BY ALLEN AND HILL.

The subscribers, while they solicit a andid and generous public to patronize the project which they have now undertaken of establishing a daily paper in the city of Baltimore, feel with ro common sensibility the delicacy and difficulty of the undertaking. Many have supposed that the citizens of the United States, are so enflamed by party ani mosity that it behoves every patriot to frown on every new champion who enters the field of political controversy.

This hypothesis, if rigidly examined will be found to end in this absurdity that the condition of our country bot abroad and at home, is so deplorable, that all attempts at reformation become criminal. If the national treasury is exhausted, commerce extinguished, public credit impaired, executive power en larged while executive responsibility is lost, if our representatives in congress have so far forgotten their own dignity and the sanctity of their constitutions trust, as to declare that the will of an individual forms the law of the land ; if in addition to this host of calamities, we are involved in a foreign war by which nothing can be gained and every thing is put in jeopardy-are we to be told that it is criminal to speak the words of honesty and truth? On the contrary, it is conceived that the argument points directly the other way for in proportion to the desperation of our public circumstances, should be the zeal of our attempts to reform.

The subscribers would propose to at tempt, but it would in them be the height of arrogance and presumption to say that they will be able to make their paper an interesting repository of intelligence. They have no hesitation in declaring that its character will be purely federal-by which they would be understood to mean, that neither the pride of power, or the insolence of ofice, shall prevent them from speaking salutary, although unpalatable truths. Having seen our political circumstan-ces growing hourly more desperate; as the precepts and example set by Washington have been hourly abandoned they deem it no less a right than a du ty to raise one more warning voice, and apprise their countrymen of their danger while it is yet in their power to

Influenced by such considerations they respectfully solicit the patronage of their countrymen to aid their undertaking.
